

Lady Rose in PVD

By Cecil Purnell

Tourbillon. Hands in the centre.

The delicate rose colour of its complexion matching a mother-of-pearl dial seems to stem from its imperceptible femininity. A kind of a gentle power emanates from the mythic pools of black diamonds, set around the face as a proud and inaccessible crown. Sensuality pours down its disproportionately grand arabesque numerals, with the 3 and 6 hinted at, almost as a discrete afterthought. Its intriguing desirability comes in part from the subtle suggestion of the beautifully crafted mechanism, that lies beneath its visage both in the framed opening of its heart as well as the crystal glass of its hidden side. Its timeless classicism betrays a controlled modesty which seduces you to covet and desire this exceptional timepiece. As an object of desire, she knows she can go to your head and she cunningly plays with this...
